Militia Minister not Responsible for Fuse Deals

REPORT COVERS 30 PRINTED PAGES

Ottawa, July 21.—The report of Sir William Meredith and Mr. Justice Duff on the fuse contracts, which has been awaited with considerable interest since the conclusion of the enquiry in June, was made public this morning by Sir Robert Borden. The report covers 30 printed pages. Contrary to expectation there is no summary of the conclusions at the end. The report is a recital of the evidence adduced at the inquiry, with an occasional expression of opinion by the commissioners. As a consequence, it is difficult without a careful study of the document, to arrive at a clear idea as to what the exact findings of the commission are.

The commissioners seem but mildly critical of the actions of the shell committee in letting the contracts for the time and grade fuse in New York. There is no condemnation of the minister of militia, who is absolved from any intention to do wrong, and the action of the shell committee in letting contracts for time fuses is generally upheld.

The commissioners are more inclined to be critical when dealing with the grade fuse contracts, and express the opinion that these could have been made in Canada. They are more inclined to place the blame on Col. Carnegie, however, than on the committee, which they say was bound to accept his advice. They are inclined to excuse Col. Carnegie, however, on the score that he was a very busy man. Col. John Wesley Allison comes in for more criticism than any one else connected with the fuse contracts. This is shown by a comment which the commissioners make in dealing with Allison's introduction of the Yoakum-Craven-Bassick group into the contract for grade fuses let to the American Ammunition company.

The commissioners, in this connection, remark: "The transaction was in substance, but the carrying out of what is a common practice of promoters who have acquired a concession or contract, and bring into existence a company to which it is transferred. But for Allison's connection with Yoakum and the position Allison occupied in relation to the grade fuse contracts, the business of carrying out the contract with the shell committee is not open to doubt. The term 'mushroom company' was therefore inapplicable to the American Ammunition company, as it was to the International Arms and Fuse company. It is true that the American Ammunition company failed to make the stipulated deliveries. It was to deliver by April 30, 1916, 833,334 time and 1,666,666 grade fuses, but had then delivered only 2,000 of the first type and 850,000 of the second. It is only fair to add that this plant was ready to be operated before the time for deliveries had arrived, and that the deliveries were delayed owing to the failure of sub-contractors to make deliveries as they had contracted to do, and to the difficulty the company met because of the failure of the finished fuses to pass the firing test.

"We may add that these difficulties have since been overcome. Apart from the commission provided for by the agreement of June 10, there is no evidence that any commission, reward, or remuneration for obtaining assistance in obtaining the contracts which we entered into with the American Ammunition company was promised or paid to anyone, and for the fact that the company and its shareholders, have been or are entitled to any interest in the contract or in the profits or prospective profits under it, and we are satisfied that neither Sir Sam Hughes nor any other member was entitled to or promised or paid, any such commission, reward, or remuneration."

cution of work of manufacturing parts. Mr. Caldwell's plan being that a loading plant should be created by the American Ammunition company, and that the fabricating of parts should be let to sub-contractors. As to the loading plant, Col. Carnegie was satisfied with the competency of the technical assistant, Mr. Gladdick.

"Mr. Caldwell was connected with companies already engaged in manufacturing fuses for the British government, and that he was entering seriously into the business of carrying out the contract with the shell committee is not open to doubt. The term 'mushroom company' was therefore inapplicable to the American Ammunition company, as it was to the International Arms and Fuse company. It is true that the American Ammunition company failed to make the stipulated deliveries. It was to deliver by April 30, 1916, 833,334 time and 1,666,666 grade fuses, but had then delivered only 2,000 of the first type and 850,000 of the second. ches with cigarettes and tobacco by their friends in this country should have the co-operative opposition of all societies interested in the moral and physical welfare of the soldiers. The fact that some of the boys are buying quantities of tobacco for future use in case the government stops their supply has come to the attention of the ladies, and they express that the soldiers were so over-supplied with what the union deems a menace to their health and efficiency in service.

"Alas! for the devotee of the 'tailor-made' cigarette and bulldog briar in the trenches! He should attend strictly to his fighting and mud-larking and leave smoking alone. The W.C.T.U. have said so. So the boys at the front have been getting an over-supply of tobacco. We know something which would be a devil of a lot worse than that, namely, an under-supply. Sensible women of Alberta must feel sorry for their Eastern W.C.T.U. sisters!"

THE "KING OF HUSTLERS"

We do not vouch for the truth of the story that is here told about Sam Hughes by an English periodical: "Sir Sam Hughes has a good many opponents in Canada, but his bitterest enemy cannot deny him the title of champion hustler of the Dominion. Quite recently he wished a camp made ready for recruits in three weeks, and gave instructions to that effect to a subaltern. The officer said the task was impossible, pointing out that among other things it would be necessary to bring water through pipes for a distance of ten miles. The objector was promptly sacked, and Sir Sam looked around for a man to do the job. He had recourse to Sir William Price, the business king of the Province of Quebec, who owns timber and paper mills that alone are worth £1,000,000. 'I want ten miles of water mains laid in three weeks,' said Sir Sam. 'You are hereby created colonel, and ordered to fire away, taking instructions from nobody.' 'I've got no uniform,' said the new colonel. 'Shirt-sleeves are good enough for me,' said Sir Sam. And the job was started so briskly on those lines that it was completed in sixteen days.

A PRETTY FIGHT

Leading United States papers which come to hand from day to day, as well as opinions expressed by Canadians who have been travelling across the line, indicate that the presidential election which is to take place in November of this year will be one of the prettiest fights the republic has seen in many years. The Hughes campaign committee have played their cards well in that they have secured the pledged support of Colonel Roosevelt, and although this does not mean the entire Progressive party, or what is left of it, probably will result in a considerable majority of those who voted for the colonel in 1912 casting their votes for Hughes this year.

Justice Hughes is a strong candidate, no matter from what angle one looks at him. As governor of the state of New York he made an impression on the people as a strong, silent man, year, he has at last forced, or one not readily susceptible to anybody's influence, and least of all to that which is exercised by practical politicians. His course in refraining from publicity of the nomination all intents and purposes he has been officially tendered to him made his own terms with the de was eminently correct; he did factio government of that count not want to drag the judiciary into politics, and in accepting the nomination as he did he has not done so. Western Canadians returning from visits to New York and the eastern cities during the last few weeks have generally come back with the opinion that Hughes will win. But although the east is a great influence in all United States elections, as is also the case in Canada, it is not everything. Justice Hughes has arrayed against him a united Democracy, which has been in power for years, led by a president, who has already shown that he is gain an idea, as to the probability of a politician. At present, however, it After writing notes for over a looks like anybody's race.

Production and Thrift

"CANADA from her abundance can help supply the Empire's needs, and this must be a comforting thought for those upon whom the heavy burden of directing the Empire's affairs has been laid. 'Ours is no gain the course before the farmers of Canada is as clear as it was last year—they must produce abundantly in order to meet the demands that may be made, and I believe this to be especially true in regard to live stock, the world's supply of which must be particularly affected in this vast struggle. Stress and strain may yet be in store for us all before this tragic conflict is over, but not one of us doubts the issue, and Canadians will do their duty in the highest sense of that great word.'—HON. MARTIN BURRELL, Minister of Agriculture.

"MODERN war is made by resources, by money, by foodstuffs, as well as by men and by munitions. While war is our first business, it is the imperative duty of every man in Canada to produce all that he can, to work doubly hard while our soldiers are in the trenches, in order that the resources of the country may not only be conserved, but increased, for the great struggle that lies before us. 'Work and Save' is a good motto for War-time.'—SIR THOMAS WHITE, Minister of Finance.

INNERMOST WORKINGS OF THE KAISER'S MIND REVEALED IN AN "INTERVIEW"

It is not easy to enter Berlin, but there is one way which is not often used. It lies I need hardly say, through a neutral kingdom. The frontier of this kingdom can be crossed by those who know the language and can secure the necessary talisman.

I need not describe my adventures in this land. They might appear incredible to those who have never been there. It is enough to say that it was there I met the person who introduced me into the presence of the All-Highest War Lord.

Let it be understood that my conversation with the Kaiser was carried on without a single eye-witness or ear witness. It is possible that the Kaiser will deny that he ever received me. In that case, it is his word against mine. Further I wish to explain that I used a false name. The Kaiser alone knows it. I venture to predict that he will never reveal it.

I was naturally forced to dissemble my love for the Kaiser and his brood. A single rash word might have cost me my life. Oddly enough, throughout the interview I did not feel a tremor of fear. Looking back upon the scene, I can scarcely believe that I possessed the hardihood to carry off my imposture. It was only after my safe return that I trembled at my own audacity.

I was shocked by the physical condition of the Kaiser. I had expected to see a pale emaciated white-haired wreck. The man who shook my hand was erect, vigorous, and, if anything, rather obese. His hair and his horrid moustachios were not white. Nor were they grey. They were a brilliant auburn. They dyed better in Berlin than in London.

After a few conventional remarks about the weather, I congratulated the Kaiser upon his dazzling victories. He frowned. "Victories," he grunted gutturally, "What victories?"

"Russia," said I, "is down and out."

"I wish Hindenburg thought so," he retorted. I wish I thought so, I thought. The Russians have so many men that they are sending legions to France.

"Phantoms!" said I. "Do you believe in that old myth?"

"Look at this," he cried, showing me a sheaf of photographs taken at Versailles. "The camera cannot lie."

"Do you forget your victories at Verdun?" I asked.

"Forget them?" he screamed. "Am I likely to forget them? Are my people likely to forget them? My friend, when I die they will find the word 'Verdun' graven on my heart. Harden told me yesterday that after the war he intends to change the title of his paper from 'Zukunft' to 'Verdun.' Verdun is the future of Germany. Do you know that Verdun has cost me 300,000 men?"

"At any rate," said I, "Turkey is triumphant."

"Optimist!" he sneered. "Are you aware that old von der Goltz was murdered? Are you aware that the Rumanians have taken Erzerum and Trebizond, and before long they will cut the railway behind Bagdad? Do you know that the Turks are threatening to make peace if I do not send them more money, more men, and more munitions?"

"But Bulgaria is immovable," I hinted.

"You are right," he snarled bitterly. "Bulgaria refuses to move. That scoundrel Ferdinand is trying to sell me as he sold Serbia. My only comfort is that nobody would buy the Balkan Judas."

"Rumania will soon join you," I remarked.

"I do not care for your jests," he replied. "Rumania will join to the rescue of the victor. I am tired of Rumania. When she joins me I shall know I have won. Her motto is 'wait and see.' The longer she waits the less hope I see."

"I fear you have joined the pessimists," I said.

"I have been a pessimist since the French won the battle of the Marne and banged, barred, and bolted the door of the west in my face. My good sir, I am like Sterne's stalling; I can't get out of my iron cage."

"The German eagle caged!" I cried. "Impossible!"

"Caged and starving to death," growled the Kaiser.

"Nonsense," said I. "You have plenty of food. Your organization is the wonder of the world."

"I am organized to death," said the Kaiser. "My people are on rations."

"They like it," I said. "The lower their diet the higher their spirit. Remember how long Prussia held out in 1870. Your Brandenburgers can hold out for ever."

"Visionary!" he muttered. "A beleaguered city is one thing; a beleaguered empire is another. Seventy millions on short commons that grow shorter every day! I do not like to think of Paris. The comparison is odious. The cards of Providence are not all made in Germany. In 1870 we starved the French. In 1916 the English are starving us."

"But your submarines will soon starve the English into surrender. They cannot fight much longer."

"Fairy tales!" said the Kaiser. "I know more about the English than they know about themselves."

They are always striding each other for being lukewarm and lethargic. Heavens! If they only knew what they have done to me!"

"What have they done?" I asked.

"Ruined me!" said the Emperor. "They catch my submarines as fast as I send them out. Their seas are alive with devils. Have you heard of their?"

"The worst of it is they never blab. Our submarines go out and never come back. It has got on my nerves. And my German pigs imagine that my undersea boats ruin the waves. I dare not undeceive them. They would kick me off my throne if they guessed the truth. And these infernal Yankee want me to abandon my last bluff. I must give up something. I haven't got it. Bah!"

"How can I fight a nation of a hundred millions? Do you think I'm mad?"

"The English are weary of the war," said I, mendaciously.

"Rubbish!" said the angry man. "I know the English. They are a stick and stick and stick. They thrive upon disasters. They flourish on defeats. I pounded them at Mons. They grinned. I pounded them at Ypres. They grinned again. They pretended to be downhearted, but they don't bamboozle me. Their armies grow and grow. Their ships breed and breed. Their money chokes me everywhere. And in England the people hardly know they are at war."

"You seem to admire the English," said I.

"They are the greatest nation on earth," said Wilhelm; "they are also the wildest and craftiest. They deceived me—even me! They duped me. They cheated me out of my war, and gave me their war. Do you think I was a fool to trust them to keep out? You don't! Well, I was a fool, and they knew it."

"Your Zepplins have terrified them," said I.

"Don't be rude," said the Kaiser. "They laugh at them. Nothing terrifies the English, except their politicians. Let me tell you the secret of the English. They are never satisfied, and they are never beaten. When they win the war they will try to persuade the world that they have won it."

"You think the English will win?" said I.

"They have won," said the Kaiser, "but they don't know it. The Germans have lost, but they don't know it. Good morning. Our talk was conducted in dreamland, but I believe in dreams."

Chaplain Tells How the Kaiser Takes the War 113 GERMAN'S CAPTURED BY 9 FRENCHMAN

Berlin, July 19.—Interesting utterances by the Kaiser regarding the spiritual side of the world war, are reported by Dr. Ott, a division field chaplain who participated in the congress of Protestant chaplains of the western front, held last April at the great headquarters.

"The Kaiser appeared in the garden of a soldier's home. He stood before us, by no means altered, fresh and with the elastic strength of youth, only perhaps somewhat slenderness than formerly. Joyous vitality pulsed in his eyes. He spoke to us quite informally, now in a light conversational tone, often laughing heartily, now earnest and emphatic, at times with strong temperaments, but always sure in his expressions."

"Without circumspection, the Kaiser gripped the spiritual pulse of the times, by saying: 'It is a time of winnowing. The world war separates wheat from chaff. The greatest gain of our nation will be that it is won back, it is looking up to God, that it is realizing that one cannot do without Him.'"

"The Kaiser spoke openly of that which might cause the German nation to lose this inner gain, the passion for bickering and criticizing," adding, 'I have often racked my brains as to how this is to be remedied, by orders or laws. The change must come. One must have from within an inward balance, then one from without. I have the impression that the men now lying in the trenches will be quite different at home."

"The Kaiser is filled with pride in his army and nation. He said 'One cannot help saying that our nation is great in that, without grumbling or blinking an eyelash, it has staked itself for the great cause and sacrifices itself for it.'"

"Thus earnestly and with real reverence and piety spoke the Kaiser."

Paris, July 19.—One of the most striking episodes of the great Somme offensive was the taking of the field fort at Blaches and the garrison of 113 men by nine French soldiers. The fort had resisted throughout the artillery bombardment and the infantry had been checked by machine gun fire.

By a lucky chance a Frenchman discovered that the bombardment had made the fort vulnerable at one point. Selecting a second lieutenant, two sergeants, a corporal, and four men, he led them on hands and knees through the long grass to the spot where he knew there was a breach in the defences. They reached their objective point without the Germans learning of their approach.

Abruptly three of the French officers leaped into the works shouting, 'Forward with the bayonet,' and throwing bombs which exploded in the dug-outs, the other six daring Frenchmen remained behind ready to retreat if the attempt failed.

But the Germans, taken unawares, had no time to get their weapons and surrendered almost without a show of fight. When one of their number fell, shot by a revolver fired point-blank by the commanding officer, the Germans, 113 in all, came out of their shelters and threw up their hands.

The three French captors now began to feel nervous as they saw no reason why the Germans should not fall upon them. But at this moment the other six hurried in. Their resolute energy imposed upon the Germans who were the new arrivals were followed by many others. The German officers in the fort then threw down their arms and the entire garrison was marched to the French rear, escorted by the nine captors who had not lost a man.

Foster's Weather Report

As we see it, this is one of the great Hall Storm years. We are expecting disastrous storms in July, and very severe storms in June. These great storms are expected to include destructive hail storms, and farmers should insure against hail. These hail storms are close kin to toradoes, and thunderstorms.

Storms are 1,000 to 2,000 miles in diameter, and our efforts are to locate their central parts. This storm will affect the whole continent and reach into the Mexican Gulf.

The Eclipse picnic was a successful one. The place was well chosen. Mr. Rainforth has a fine farm. The two large barns hold a great many teams, and the large two-story cottage accommodates troops of people when the rain falls. The fields near by furnish a good place for games, and the grove is an excellent place for picnic tables. As there was a rain item on the programme the races and contests were brought on in good time.

We wish to ask our readers and friends to join with the Red Cross Society on Friday, July 28th. The Clive branch of the Red Cross Society will serve refreshments on that day in the Sarceant building, and we ask you all to go and give them your support. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel and make July 28th a banner day for the Clive branch of the Red Cross Society. The dance in the evening will also be in aid of the Red Cross Society.

Lockhart News

On Sunday night, 16th inst., a very severe electric storm, accompanied by torrential rain, visited Calkins Valley and the environs thereof. The storm lasted some two hours, and considerable damage was done. Sam Schmidt lost two horses struck by lightning, and a colt is paralyzed and not expected to recover. One of the buildings on Pap's homestead was struck and the roof considerably damaged. A number of trees in different places were struck, three being completely uprooted just south of Al. Langmaid's. It is supposed one of Grover Robson's horses was standing near these trees at the time and was badly scared. Next morning she was found badly cut up, and it was seen she had jumped through a four-strand wire fence near where the lightning struck.

Mr. Olsen is up from the States visiting old friends.

There was some frost in different parts of the Medicine Valley on Saturday night, 22nd inst. potatoes in low spots being slightly scalded. The frost, however, did no damage.

Don't forget to keep the 5th of August an open date, and attend the celebration at Calkins Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Jeffrey, partnered by Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hansen, will give an illustration of the Highland Fling at the big celebration. We can assure any one that doesn't know that it will be worth $5.00 to see these ladies dance.

The Excursion to the Farm Has Record Breaking Crowd

Two Thousand People Spend Enjoyable Day as Guests of Supt. Hutton

That it is possible to develop in Alberta farm homes that will attract and hold on the land people of aesthetic tastes was the conviction reached by the hundreds of farmers and townsmen who visited the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, on Friday last.

The past winter was a very severe one and killed a number of trees that hitherto had been considered hardy. Notwithstanding these losses, the grounds are carrying a large number of ornamental shrubs and trees in perfect condition. The arrangement and grouping of these shrubs was an object lesson to many farmers who require windbreaks and are planning also to beautify lawns on the farms with the object of making the place a HOME. Townsmen also showed an appreciation of the fact that trees add money value to the town lot as well as to being a source of continual pleasure to the owner.

The train from the east arrived at 10.20, and from that moment to the hour of departure the large groups were interested in the various phases of the work of the farm. The programme began at one o'clock, and addresses were delivered by Alex. Galbraith, superintendent of fairs and institutes for Alberta; H. W. Wood, President of the U. F. A.; and Dr. J. G. Rutherford, chief of agriculture and animal industry, department of Natural Resources, C.P.R., Calgary.

At the conclusion of the addresses the visitors were shown over the farm and the results of many of the experiments explained by the superintendent and staff. It was shown that under certain methods of cultivation not uncommonly practiced in Alberta, a bushel of wheat may cost 77 cents, while under a more modern system the cost may be reduced to 21 cents per bushel. In the cattle barns the cost of producing butter under different systems was shown to vary from 16 cents to 31.25 cents, the low cost being secured by the use of peas and oats in the modern silo. The effect of breeding in increasing the production was in evidence, one cow having a record of 3,000 pounds, while a stable mate, bred for milk and butter production, shows a record of nearly 16,000 pounds, fed under similar conditions. The cost of producing beef is also being determined at the farm, over 130 steers being used in this experiment, which includes the determining of the value of prairie grass and the amount of gains made during the season by steers of different ages on this class of pasture.

In the piggery it was shown that the choice of pastures made a reduction of 70 cents per 100 in the grain cost of producing pork, while the saving in grain by the use of pasture as compared with feeding hogs without pasture, as is very frequently done, was $1.75 per 100 pounds of pork.

Over 500 plots are being used in agricultural experiments to determine the best methods to be used in this work, while hundreds of experiments are being carried on with different varieties of cereals, potatoes, grasses and clovers.

The cattle, mostly Aberdeen Angus and dairy breeds, are in fine condition, and the visitors greatly enjoyed seeing through the stables, creamery and butter making plants, and in examining the apiary, where thousands of bees were at work storing honey gathered from the flowers. Pigs, sheep, chickens and ducks were examined and admired. The crops, too, show a healthy and rapid growth. In fact, nothing in these lines deserves anything but admiration for the care they reflect.

Over twelve hundred farmers and their families, from outside points, visited the farm, and in addition to these, about six hundred visitors from Lacombe and district were in attendance.

For the satisfaction of the inner man a luncheon was provided by the ladies of the Red Cross Society, and so great was the patronage accorded that long before the wants of the crowd were satisfied the ladies ran out of eatables. The ladies realized nearly two hundred dollars from lunches and refreshments. They wish to thank all those who kindly assisted to make their part of the affair a success, especially those ladies who gave their whole time to waiting on the tables and counters; the gentlemen who provided autos for their convenience, and Mr. Sage, who did the drag. J. N. B. Macdonald, of the nursery, provided a profusion of beautiful flowers for the occasion.

This was the best attended excursion in the history of the town, and next year's excursion will be eagerly looked forward to.

Miss Irene McLaughlin is having a trip to the coast in company with her sister, Miss F. E. McLaughlin, of Regina.

TERRIBLE DEED OF ALIEN ANARCHISTS IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, July 23.—San Francisco's great preparedness parade yesterday was made the scene of one of the most terrible bomb outrages since the Haymarket riots in Chicago.

The city is stunned by the mad act of a man who set an infernal machine at the crowded corner of Stuart and Market streets and left it to unchain death and destruction.

Seven were killed and 40 men, women and children were injured when the bomb exploded at 2:06 o'clock.

"Two women standing beside me were blown to bits," said Mrs. Kingsley Van Loom, who with her two children, was injured. The police say it is possible that some bodies were blown out of existence.

There is no trace of the man who left the bomb, timed to explode, sheltered in a cheap suitcase by the side of the marchers. The outrage is laid at the door of the foreign anarchists who have been sending out threatening letters in connection with the anti-militaristic propaganda.

The authorities are making an effort to find the guilty ones, for this crime has aroused San Francisco as nothing else has for years. Ten divisions moved up Market street before the explosion came. The street presented an appearance of great brilliancy and color. Fifty thousand marchers were in line, and twice that number had come to see them pass. At Stuart and Market streets, one block from the Ferry building, the lines of the grand army of the republic were forming behind a great flag, which was carried stretched from hand-to-hand in square formation.

It was near this flag, in a dark corner near a saloon, that the murderer placed a dirty yellowish suitcase and drifted away through the crowds unnoticed. No one noticed the harmless appearing receptacle standing against the wall of the Ferry Exchange saloon. The police were watching that corner for a number of suspicious looking characters had been seen loitering there.

It was almost time for the military to order the loyal legion to move. The street was a confused, swaying mass, the people craning their necks to see the troops go up Market street. Out of all this brightness of sharp platoon. For a moment the people further away thought it was the signal for the G.A.R. and the volunteers to get under way. A cheer started, and then died away in another sound that rose above the multitude—the cries of women and children shrieking in pain and terror.

A heavy dark smoke overhung the street as a pall. As this curtain was lifted a pitiful scene was disclosed. Scores of bodies, crumpled, maimed, torn and bleeding, were lying there. Some moaning, some stirring feebly, others were still forever. The bomb scattered with such deadly force that much of its force was expended in a block from the place of the actual explosion. The California volunteers, placed a little way down the street, where the crowd was thinner in the protecting line, suffered heavily. It was here that George L. Painter, was killed. The force of the bomb was astonishing.

The bomb was made of an iron pipe, the police declare. Two pieces of twisted nickel plated tin were found, indicating that a time clock had been used, with a set fuse.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years. To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-purifying properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness.
